MEET SUZI

Our Southern Right Whale

EUBALAENA AUSTRALIS

Displayed overhead is the authentic skeleton of a female Southern Right Whale, retrieved from a carcass that washed up at Blue Water Bay, near Pearly Beach in September 2005.

The process of restoring and preserving the bones took seven years. It was mounted in the Great White House Restaurant in May 2013. Hoisting the finished skeleton in position took three nights and 10 pizzas.

The floating bones towards the rear of the skeleton are the remains of the pelvis. It serves the purpose of holding the sexual organs in position. The hind legs of these Mammals were lost in the evolution process of their species.

You can identify life size replicas of the ear, eye and heart.

This whale's death, in 2005, was likely the result of a collision with a ship. The reconstructed bone fractures are indicated by contrasting brick colours on the skeleton.

This permanent exhibition is now as much a reminder of our responsibility to the marine environment as it is a truly breathtaking spectacle and achievement.

You can also spot Common and Bottlenose Dolphins as well as African Penguin skeletons on display.

INTERESTING FACTS

SKELETON WEIGHT: 2 ton / 2000 kg

SPECIES LIVE WEIGHT: Up to 40 ton

SIZE: 14.3 m

The Southern Right Whale has 300 l of blood pumping through its veins with the heart pumping at 16 beats per minute.

Our tap water is safe to drink. Did you know that we save up to 20 000 water bottles every year by using reusable cups instead?

Reduce, reuse, recycle
We use no sugar sachets, butter or jam holders to prevent added waste.

Save electricity by using low energy lightbulbs

#EveryBirdCounts

Did you know that the African penguin is endangered with an estimated loss of 90 birds per week. This species could be extinct by 2030 if we don't act now.

Visit the African Penguin and Seabird Sanctuary (APSS) in Kleinbaai to see what is being done to turn around this decline. One penguin in rehabilitation eats an average of 420 sardines.

Our boats, Slashfin, Dream Catcher and Whale Whisperer are Blue Flag certified.

Check out www.dict.org.za

for a list of our scientific publications that contribute to the conservation of our marine species.

Our International Marine Volunteers enjoy a life changing experience learning through eco-tourism, conservation, community, research and education. Read more @ www.marinevolunteers.com

We work with a group of dedicated scholars on our Dyer Island Conservation Trust Environmental Education Programme known as DEEP.

These students are our future marine conservationists and we call them our DEEP Blue Ambassadors.

The mission of the Dyer Island Conservation Trust is to:

DISCOVER and understand this globally important marine eco-system through world-class scientific research.

PROTECT the long term future of the species which live here by translating this knowledge into evidence based conservation initiatives and legislation.

EDUCATE our partners - local communities, legislators and visitors - by informing and actively involving them in achieving our goals for the benefit of all.

Choose not to use straws. Millions of straws are collected every year in beach clean ups around the world. We do have paper straws available.

Our Marine Big 5 - the great white shark, the Southern right whale, the Cape fur seal, the African penguin and dolphins - can be seen around the Dyer Island ecosystem.

To view, book a trip with Dyer Island Cruises @ www.sharkwatchsa.com

The African Penguin and Seabird Sanctuary is open daily from 8AM - 4PM
Feeding times of penguins: 8:30AM and 3PM - Free entrance

"With every drop of water you drink, every breath you take, you're connected to the sea" - Sylvia Earle

Support WWF's Sustainable Seafood Initiative. Choose only those fish from the GREEN LIST.
Ask our waiters for the SASSI card or send an SMS to 079 499 8795 with the fish species to check its status.

The deadliest ocean trash collected on our beaches and harmful to the marine wildlife include :

fishing gear, plastic bags and utensils, balloons, cigarette butts and bottle caps (Ocean Conservancy)

Without concerted global action, there could be one ton of plastic for every 3 tons of fish by 2025, leading to significant environmental, economic and health issues.

Please use water sparingly

No plastic bags in the shop or for food on the boats

We grow our own vegetables for use in the Great White House restaurant.

Marine Dynamics supports our local football club!

Marine Dynamics, Dyer Island Cruises and International Marine Volunteers are Fair Trade Tourism certified.

The Fair Trade label stands for fair wages and working conditions, fair purchasing and operations, equitable distribution of benefits and respect for human rights, culture and the environment.

Marine Dynamics and Dyer Island Cruises have been Fair Trade Tourism certified since 2008.
