One fine day, as a truck laden with cattle rattled past our Cabernet Sauvignon vineyard, one of the passengers decided: The Cow Stops Here. She jumped. Not only did she survive, but she has thrived, and even produced several offspring.

Because she embodies the free spirit of the Swartland, these wines pay tribute to our noble Nguni* cow, SURVIVOR. *Nguni cattle are the traditional livestock of the Zulu people of South Africa.

Did you know:

Champagne can only be called Champagne if it's made using grapes grown in the Champagne region of France. Méthode Cap Classique is the 'South African version' of Champagne. It's made using the same Process as French Champagne — it just can't carry the same name.

The quality of South African MCC is often referred to as being on par with French Champagne, at a much more affordable price.

Did you know:

To make Rosé wine, the skin of red grapes is immersed in the wine for a short amount of time (typically anywhere from 2 to 20 hours). The sooner the grape skins are removed, the lighter the Rosé will be; the longer they sit in their wine bath, the deeper pink the Rosé.
