"LITTLE PLACE"

Once upon a time, at the edge of a big city, was a little village where two little boys lived, one more little than the other but that's another story altogether. Their names were Jack & Eric.

Jack & Eric's parents came from another land, a land where all the moms could cook really well without even trying hard. Soon the little village boasted the best restaurants for many miles around. It was called "Oranjagrove".

Jack & Eric weren't very good at school and instead of mixing chemicals at the back of the science class, they dreamt of owning a *"little place" where people could come and eat really good food and have fun with their family and friends.

The two little boys became two big boys, one bigger than the other, but that too, is another story.

The promise that they made at the back of the class became reality when they heard of this great city by the sea, this faraway land known as the Mother City. In this city, was a little village right on the point by the sea, it was called "Sea Point".

Go Figure!!

It was there where they found their *"little place" where there were angels and prophets painted on the wall and a Princess in the kitchen. That's how the story began....
