

fabled cocktails

part four

our signature drinks are the embodiment of our collection of local fables. developed alongside the fables, each fabled cocktail is a unique creation that went through countless iterations before being perfected.

like the fable it is based on, each drink unfolds in four parts over four seasons. with every new iteration comes new flavours and complexity, adding depth to the original and hinting at what's to come.

the ultimate expression of our vision, our cocktails tell stories.

the kronendal lovers

01

oom cloete, townsfolk say, shot her beau on his nuptial day.
elsa fainted hearing he'd passed, and the bride breathed her last.
now a ghostly girl in a wedding gown is said to walk up and down, ever searching that oak-lined lane, longing to see her love again.

roku japanese gin
elderflower

the adamastor

02

some say adamastor is an olympian executioner, garroter of the gods, administering judgement against the sailors for their promethean rebellion.
others say that adamastor sought to barter the sailors' souls for his own, to satiate the anger of the gods for his own rebellion, in a bid for freedom.

tanqueray no. ten gin
litchi cordial
dry vermouth
salted aloe air

R115

potent,
passionate, rebellious

the karoo beauty

03

others say bufeljags dam is not a grave, but a womb;
the water maiden neither ghost nor siren, as some assume.
africa's first men named the water maiden mami wata,
part woman, part fish, a goddess, she is mother of water.

el jimador blanco tequila
strawberry
white cacao
chilli
lime

beguiling,
vindicating, soothing

R100

the trickster

04

having escaped the grip of the grave, heitsi-eibib journeys between worlds, passing from death to life, helping those travellers who've lost their way.
ever shifting his shape, a changeling, heitsi-eibib crosses the country still,
granting safe passage to those passers-by who place a stone upon his grave.

jim beam bourbon

R195

elusive,
cunning, defiant

the flying dutchman

05

seeing the dutchman is said to be a bad omen:
those who behold her blaze across the horizon –
a brig, sails full set, bearing down upon them –
are said to see death, and to bid him welcome.

cruxland gin
winter melon
green apple
prosecco
citrus
dill oil

pioneering,
prophetic, tempestuous

R115

the watcher of the south

06

the fallen earth warriors continue to watch over the land to this day, living on as great mountains that guard against the sea's encroach.
some see in table mountain the silhouette of a sleeping man, d'klipman;
the xhosa know this to be the great warrior, the watcher of the south.

ketel one vodka
cassis
citrus cordial
fitch & leedes soda
cranberry & champagne foam

gallant,
righteous, resolute

the albatross rock

07

many soldiers fought and lost their battle with the waves,
and along with the ship, made albatross rock their grave.
the remains of the thomas t tucker still lie on the shore,
and the soldier's cries for help echo in the waves' roar.

bisquit vs cognac
roasted 🍑
thyme
sauvignon blanc
citrus

R130

bold,
intrepid, courageous

the smoking devil

08

the old men who know the old stories say van hunks and the devil still duel.
so when the summer south-easter blows, and the cloud-cloth covers the table, you can be sure van hunks and the devil are trying to out-smoke each other,
locked in a struggle for his soul on that sierra that is their namesake:
devil's peak.

jim beam bourbon

beer, wine and bubbly

wines, beers and bubbly are never just wines, beers and bubbly. we've had enough of them all to know that, and to discern the difference between good, bad, and ugly - and everything in between.

we've tested and approved each option on our menu and ensured that there's something for every palate and occasion - classics and favourites, a few 'special occasion' choices, and one or two wildcards just for fun.
